

Thinking about hatching chicks in your classroom?

We are happy to announce that our popular Hatching Science minigrants and workshops will be repeated in 2015!

All Utah teachers are invited to apply for the grant,* which includes:

- Brinsea Mini dome incubator
- Brooder box
- Heat lamp and bulb
- Feeder/waterer (feed included)
- Bedding
- Curriculum materials, including our popular Countdown to Hatch kit

The next round of workshops will be held in Cache, Davis, Iron, and Utah counties. Exact dates and locations will be announced in January 2015.

All applicants for this grant will receive free enrollment in the informational workshops in their areas. These workshops are designed to help teachers with the technical aspect of hatching chicks and will also provide practical, hands-on resources for integrating chick themes into core curriculum. Go online to <http://tinyurl.com/aitcHatch2015> for more information and to find a link to the application.

The application deadline for the Hatching Science grant is December 17, 2014, but don't delay--apply now!

Visit us at utah.agclassroom.org; search "eggs" on our website for more information on this grant, the workshops, and related curriculum resources.

Awardees must be present at one of the workshops in order to receive their resources.*

