The Sanpete County Community Garden and Farmers Market projects were started through a partnership with USU Extension's Food Sense program, the City of Ephraim, Snow College, and the Sanpete Pantry. The main objective of the project was to provide fresh produce to low-income citizens of Sanpete County through gardening practices.

COMMUNITY GARDEN
The Community Garden Project ran 24 weeks from May-October. Volunteers consisted of Snow College Service Club members, Girl’s Home residents, and community agency staff. Each group donated approximately 2 hours of their time each visit.

FOOD SENSE RECIPIENTS

Food Sense provided resources through recipes and handouts to community garden and farmers market participants. During the first year of activities, information was provided indirectly. However, Food Pantry clientele, garden participants, and farmers market attendees will be contacted and encouraged to participate in Food Sense Creates classes starting in 2015.

IMPACTS AND SUCCESS STORIES

• Impacts and success stories were collected through informal narratives from participants.

• Families reported they noticed a reduction in their grocery bills due to growing their own produce.

• Families reported an increase in fresh fruit and vegetable consumption due to the availability of fresh produce in their garden plots.

• Community partnerships were strengthened in order to provide resources to SNAP-Ed eligible families in Sanpete County.

In the future, an IRB approved formal survey would be beneficial for more detailed impacts. Because it was the first year of the project, we were not sure how well the project would be received.
The Community Garden and Farmers Market projects provided individuals and families with the tools and resources to grow their own produce and increase their knowledge about fruit and vegetable consumption. In addition, community agencies and resources that focus on fighting hunger were made available to county residents.
