

Research Landscapes

08/13/2020

Research Landscapes is a new research series from Utah State University

Jordan Smith, Jessica Schad, and Zach Miller will be presenting at the first Research Landscapes event of the year. The three will discuss the growing pains of rural Utah communities flooded with tourism, how these communities can better manage this influx of people, and the different ways Utah can build the most robust outdoor recreation economy.

You can watch the 3-part presentation below.
