

The Impact of New Trail Construction on Wildlife

The Impact of New Trail Construction on Wildlife

Outdoor enthusiasts face an exasperating paradox—does their being in the wilderness harm the wilderness? This research examined clues about how much new hiking trails (during construction, and immediately after) affect several animals in Stone Mountain State Park, North Carolina.

View final report