

Wayne Brinkerhoff – A Pillar of Support for 4-H Silver Spurs Horse Club

By: Judy Jensen

In the heart of Juab County, volunteers like Wayne Brinkerhoff are the backbone of programs that shape our youth. Wayne is a dedicated supporter of the 4-H Silver Spurs Horse Club in Nephi, where he lends his time and skills to ensure that young equestrians and their families have a valuable and smooth experience.

Wayne's involvement in the club is driven by his own family's passion for horses, with his children actively participating in horse 4-H. Every Thursday night at the fairgrounds, you'll find Wayne lending a hand behind the scenes. From prepping horses and tack to hauling equipment and ensuring kids and their animals arrive safely, Wayne is always ready to help.

His contributions go beyond transportation and preparation. Wayne also takes on the physically demanding tasks of setting up and taking down patterns, which involves moving barrels, poles, and various obstacles. His willingness to assist other horse volunteer leaders shows his commitment to making the club's activities run seamlessly.

Wayne's dedication stems from his belief in the positive impact horse 4-H can have on youth. "Working with animals teaches kids lessons that go far beyond riding skills," Wayne often says. "Horse 4-H is an opportunity that's good for both the kids and their horses." His passion for supporting young people in their equine experiences is evident in every action he takes.

We extend a heartfelt thank you to Wayne Brinkerhoff for his time, energy, and unwavering support as a horse 4-H volunteer. The Silver Spurs Horse Club and the entire community appreciate your dedication!
