

Juab County 4-H is proud to introduce this year's County Livestock Ambassadors—a group of hardworking youth who represent leadership, dedication, and a love for animals.

Bronx McGee is an 8th grader who loves everything about country life, from raising turkeys, chickens, and goats to hunting and riding his four-wheeler. He made history as the first from Juab County to compete in the Utah Jr. Turkey Show, earning blue ribbons in both 2023 and 2024. Bronx also shows goats at the Juab County Fair, qualifying for Championship Drive, placing 3rd in Showmanship, and winning the 4-H Livestock Knowledge Series. At 14 years old, Brynnley Worwood has raised and shown lambs and enjoys learning more about livestock care each year. She loves animals, tumbling, soccer, hunting, and shooting her bow. Brynnley is excited to serve as a Livestock Ambassador and help others grow through 4-H.

Kambrie Brown became a Livestock Ambassador because she loves animals and helping others. She has two horses and two dachshunds and enjoys rodeo and volleyball. Kambrie hopes to become a veterinarian one day and is looking forward to making memories and gaining new experiences this year.

Taigan Ballow is a dedicated livestock showman who enjoys working with his animals, gardening, and learning new things. He's excited to serve as a Livestock Ambassador and share his passion for agriculture with others in the 4-H community.
