Join the USU crops team to kickoff the 2025 crop school season with a virtual crop school!

The virtual crop school will kickstart the series of nearly a dozen or more county crop schools in 2025, along with the Hay symposium. It will include an economic and water outlook, along with tips for the coming growing season. Several Extension specialists will share short updates and tips, along with several opportunities for discussion and questions.

Registration is required so we can share the zoom link for the school.
