Effective interviewing skills are essential in the world today. These skills can earn a job, a position in student government, or a scholarship and they can also help in day-to-day interactions.

CONVERSATION STARTERS:
- What is a positive way to respond to an unexpected question?
- What do you think interviewers wish to see in a candidate?

This exercise will help participants develop and practice skills to ace an interview. One can never be too prepared for an interview, so this activity will practice possible scenarios and help participants feel ready.

EXPLORATION ACTIVITY:
Split participants into pairs. Participants will practice responding to questions quickly and professionally. Within each partnership, one will ask questions, and the other will answer.

FACILITATION TIPS:
- Have a volunteer demonstrate one or two questions they excelled at.
- Remind participants of their non-verbal cues, and their body language: sit up straight, make eye contact, look pleasant, etc.
- Create a list of tips and tricks identified by the group.

- The goal is to answer as many questions as possible in 3 min. Can they “keep their cool?” Every question answered is a point for their pair. If the facilitator catches a participant losing composure, 5 points will be deducted.
- After three minutes, pairs will switch roles to allow everyone a chance as interviewer and interviewee.
- The new interviewer continues where their partner left off, but start over if all questions have been asked. After everyone has had a chance to answer questions, teams add up their points.

KEY OBJECTIVES:
- Practice quick thinking.
- Understand professionalism.
- Prepare for common interview questions.
- Identify good interview skills.

WHAT YOU’LL NEED:
- Access to media device to share online video: https://www.dailymotion.com/video/x6qgleu
- Copies of questions (See Appendices A,B)
REFLECTION QUESTIONS:
Talk about what happened during the activity:

- What was challenging about this activity?
- What worked best when communicating non-verbally?
- What did you learn about the importance of Non-verbal Communication?
- If you were to do it again, how would you change your technique?

APPLICATION DISCUSSION:
Discussion Questions:

- When do you see yourself using this information next?
- How are these skills used in daily life?
- What are 1-2 skills you feel you can work on?
- What other characteristics and skills that an employer may be looking for?
- How can you develop these skills?

CONCLUSION:
Interviews can be crucial to taking the next step in your life path. Take the time to fine tune your skills through practice. The confidence you develop will show in your interview.
